VOLUME XIX

FOREWORD

In publishing this annual several thoughts were kept in mind. To portray the events of this school year; to strengthen the bonds of true friendship by recording treasured memories; to establish respect and reverence for the Alma Mater of tomorrow; and lastly, to uphold the tradition of a school that has published many excellent volumes similar to this one.

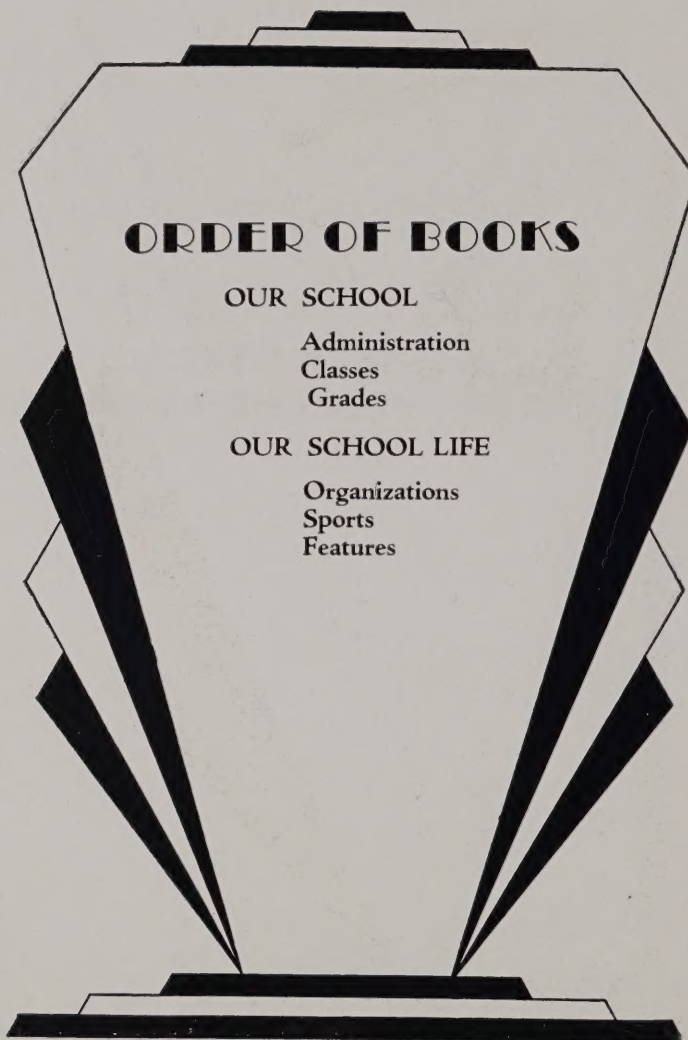

If we have accomplished these things, then we are happy to have succeeded in our sincere efforts.

DEDICATION

In recognition of our appreciation for the unselfish and devoted sacrifices of beloved parents, whose efforts have advanced us thus far in our education, this nineteenth volume of "The Rosebud" is respectfully dedicated.

SENIOR CLASS POEM

One-two-three-four,
How the years roll by!
Marching on, a struggling corps
Seniors of the Waterloo High.

The long skirmish is over,
And each sphere is greatly enlarged;
Some are glad and some are sad,
But all are honorably discharged.

Soon we shall be engaged
In the allotted three score and ten,
Thinking the while that this is staged:
"Our Aim, Our Hope Is, To Win."

—Clair Walker '30

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

On September seventh, nineteen hundred twenty-six, the first Freshman Class to enter the new Waterloo High School building, numbered thirty-five. Later a new member entered, which increased the number to thirty-six.

The second year, on September the sixth, nineteen hundred twenty-seven, the class of nineteen-thirty came back to add another successful year, only to find that twelve of the members did not return. This loss left the total number of twenty-three to be Sophomores.

On August twenty-eighth, nineteen hundred twenty-eight, the same class returned as "Jolly Juniors." Only nineteen added this third year of secondary education. One member dropped out and one entered, leaving the number at nineteen.

The fourth year in August, nineteen hundred twenty-nine, this class of twenty members entered the W. H. S. as "Dignified Seniors." Later a new member entered, making twenty-one members. Although there were many difficulties before us, they were all conquered, and the class of nineteen-thirty held to its motto, "Our aim, our hope is, to win."

—Clayton Warner '30

Kokomo, Indiana

July 26, 1936

Dear Mary:

How are you and the rest of the family? The last time I heard from you, Grider had the chicken pox, and I was wondering if he had recovered. Your marriage with Grider surely has been successful, hasn't it? I was meant to be an old maid, I guess, all my life, but as long as I can travel around all I wish, I'm glad I haven't a husband to be tied down to. You heard of an unknown uncle of mine a dying, didn't you? He left half a million dollars to me because he liked my baby picture. I surely love to travel, and have met some of the most interesting people during my trip from which I just returned.

I started from Kokomo enroute to New York City. I stopped at different towns and cities. Waterloo, my home town, was the first stop, and I found that most of my school-mates were gone from there. A few remained, however, and I'll tell you about them. I stayed at what used to be the Gifford Hotel, which is now owned by Albert Dunn. He and his wife, Mae Link Dunn, are successfully running the hotel, and the place looked very prosperous. By the way, Mae still covers ground as fast as ever. I remained in Waterloo only three days, and then I left for Buffalo. Albert and Mae saw me off as the hotel is just across the street from the depot.

In Buffalo I stopped at the Statler Hotel, and after checking in, I decided to see the sights of that city. I chanced to pass a high class restaurant, and in the window was a girl flipping pan-cakes; she was no other than Muriel Beard. She recognized me as I stood and looked at her, and after motioning me inside, she hurried away after something to continue her work. I sat down at one of the tables, and she soon came back and said another girl would take her place for awhile. She told me that she had at last married Pete Smalley and that he was working there in Buffalo and that they lived in an apartment in the main part of the city. She inquired about some of her school-mates. She said that Hugh Farrington was also working in Buffalo. He was working in a shoe factory; his job was to make the arch in the "Arch Preserver" shoes.

I had to leave Muriel soon and also the city of Buffalo, as I had to go directly to New York City and then get my boat for Europe. I had only a few hours in New York, so I didn't get to see much of that great city. I boarded my steamer and found myself in a very comfortable suite of rooms. The steward came into the living room to dust the furniture; when he turned round, I found him to be Virgil Troyer. You remember him, don't you? We had quite a visit, and I learned that he had been working on that ship for two years and that, although at first he became seasick, he never was affected that way anymore. I reached England after six days of ocean travel, and I was indeed glad to get on land again.

I stayed in London for two days only, because all I could see was fog. During my stroll on my first day in London I wandered too far from my hotel; at a street corner I saw a "Bobby," and I determined to ask him to direct me back to my hotel. I thought his back vaguely familiar, and, indeed, it was—Edward Schlosser. Imagine Edward as a "Bobby!" I couldn't talk to him very long as he had to direct traffic. He has been in England for a year, and he was expecting a promotion at any time. Oh, I almost forgot! He married a waitress from New York City, and together they are seeking their fortunes in London.

From London I crossed into Ireland. It surely is a beautiful country. I visited Blarney Castle, but I knew better than to try to kiss the Blarney Stone as I have heard of several experiences that weren't so pleasant about that particular stone. They have keepers in Blarney Castle to see that you take nothing, and who do you suppose was the chief keeper? Clair Walker! He had on a green uniform to match the hills surrounding the castle and he looked fine. He is a bachelor and seems to enjoy being one, although that is difficult to imagine.

From Ireland I returned to England and then to France, where I went at once to Paris. As I wanted some new dresses, I happened into a shop with a very French name. Several mannequins with beautiful dresses on paraded before me and one stepped out. I knew her at once. It was Dorice Pease. She was glad to see me, and she told me all about herself. She had landed in Paris about six months before, and as she had always wanted to be a mannequin, she found employment. She wasn't married then, but she was engaged and she acted very happy about it. I wished her happiness and then went my way.

I stayed in Paris for a week, and then I left for Nice, Italy. There I had a suite of rooms in a lovely hotel that overlooked the Mediterranean. I went at once to the beach where I could get some of that glorious sunshine. I was equipped with a large umbrella and with a book. I noticed a figure in a bright red bathing suit that dived time after time with perfect form. After awhile I saw that she was swimming into land, and as she drew near, I recognized her as Vivian McBride. She is married to Clayton Warner and she said he was somewhere on the beach. I met him afterwards. He looked as young as ever. They were on their honeymoon and were having the time of their lives.

I traveled on to Rome, and there I viewed the famous ruins of that equally famous city. I attended a concert one evening in an old amphitheater and who should be the featured number but Daisie Bowman, better known as Madame Giovanni. I saw her after the concert. She called her husband over to where we were, and I was surprised to see it was Robert Boyer. They looked very devoted to each other. She expects to tour the U. S. this coming year.

My next stop was Berne, Switzerland, where the mountains were breath-taking. I saw many of the famous St. Bernard dogs. I also visited a monastery nestled down in the hills and surrounded by a tall wall. The party of tourists with which I was travelling gained admittance to the heavily barred gate. After going through the monastery, which proved to be intensely interesting, the monk took us back of the monastery to the kennels of the St. Bernards, and there feeding them was Waldo Crooks. He looked very subdued, but he brightened up considerably when I asked him about himself and his work. He said he was very absorbed in his work of diagnosing the diseases of the St. Bernard dogs; it is also his duty to prepare the food for the dogs. He said he was unable to find employment in the U. S., so he finally ended up in Switzerland.

I decided to spend a week in Spain where I had a room in a very quaint old inn on the outskirts of the city. The owners of which I found to be Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Kimmell, the latter being the former Earleen Heign. They have been married for two years, and as far as I could see, there were no clouds on the matrimonial horizon. They looked prosperous and said they had learned quite a bit of the Spanish language. I asked them whether they had seen anything of Ralph Childs. Wilbur said he lived with his wife, the former Mural Wise, in a cottage in the Alps, where they raised sheep and goats. Now can you imagine Mural settling down to anything as mild as raising sheep and goats. I also learned that Henry Rigg, alias Allez Voodoo, is touring Europe with the largest circus on the continent. He is the strong man. Quite a position to hold isn't it?

After visiting Spain, I sailed for the U. S. and dear old Kokomo. Instead of writing a letter, I've written a volume, so I'll close with love.

Louise

WHAT WE HAVE DONE

The girls of our class, in their freshman and sophomore years, with the efficient guidance of Mrs. O. V. Winks, then our teacher, practically equipped the Home Economics Department. Some of the equipment purchased included: sewing machine, wardrobe, full-length mirror, curtains, electric equipment, dishes and first-aid kit. Mrs. Winks, then our teacher, deserved much credit for our achievements.

The boys of our class have not been asleep. They have joined different farm clubs and have done their part for the betterment of our school. Albert Dunn and Wilbur Kimmell have done excellent work in the Hi-Y club.

Our class has taken active part in both musical and literary work, in operettas, class plays and county contests. Mural Wise has won first place in the county oratorical contest and in the reading, and she has received many medals and ribbons for her talent at the piano and with her reading ability. Daisie Bowman won first place with her vocal solo this year in the county contest. Daisie has taken active part in many programs and operettas. Muriel Beard has also taken part in many programs and entertainments, using her reading ability well.

The Senior typing class has received pins and certificates for their proficiency in that subject.

We hope that the classes that follow will profit by our example and work to the best of their ability for the betterment of our school.

JUNIOR CLASS POEM

By the laws of education
We are taking our dictation
From the volumes that a jolly Junior should,
Clinging firmly to our motto
In a blue and orange grotto,
Striving, ever striving for the good.

Building on firm foundation
Steps of stone for reservation
For the ascent we are nearly to complete.
Dawn will find us rising higher
Like a soaring baldy flier,
Till at last we have not to compete.

Stepping faster as time passes,
Climbing to the higher classes,
Well evading every little trouble groove,
Going upward and not downward,
Going forward and not backward,
That's the creed that makes the world move.

—Vivian Wing '31

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

Three years ago on September sixth, thirty-two green pupils wended their way up the steps of the new high school building. Other pupils asked, "Who are they?" They soon found that "they" were the Freshmen. The members of the class had no casualties that year, as Freshmen are not likely to be over-courageous.

The next year school started early; the exact date was August twenty-eighth. On the second rung of achievement upon pausing, the class found that six members had left, but five new ones came to take their places. Sometime in the early part of the year, one of the members left, leaving a total of thirty to finish the year. The Sophomores still boasted of being the largest class in high school.

This year, eight members left to seek the cruel ways of the world. This loss left a total of twenty-two. Then at the close of the first semester another member dropped out, but one of the old faithfuls joined our ranks again to make a total of twenty-two. The Juniors do solemnly swear to return for the last rung of scholastic achievement if that may in any way be possible.

H. GREELEY'S ADVICE HEEDED

In Boston? Yes, the town where they drop their r's, but don't dunk in the alphabetic soup (it's too hard on the vest) and use the words monoaceticacidester salicylicacid, when ordering aspirin from the drug store cowboy, also, the town of high hats, stiff necks, and proud posterity (members of the four hundred—some merely the "00's.")

We have told you about the village long famous for a certain bean, but now let us become acquainted with Percy VanBond, our hero (shero).

One day after the "Boston Tea Party," it was not the real for sure party, but one of the many afternoon teas, when the atmosphere minus that old "76" spirit and the echo of Paul Revere's shouts had died down. Percy, (dear), the delicatessen nourished son of a Mrs. VanBond, another proverbial "Mrs. Grundy," having become rather (rawther) fatigued, from the very strenuous eight hours of manlike labor, croquet and bridge, retired to his room rather early. While loafing in his room he chanced to pick up that very interesting, and entertaining novel, or pamphlet, of Horace Greeley's in which he said, "Go West, and grow up with the world, young man!" while he stayed at home. Percy stopped and mused over those words, for he had been as inseparable from his mother as pretzels and that which is pleasing to the Rhine boys. He had been educated by a tutor, he had not gone to Yale or Princeton and seen the world (co-eds).

He had heard much about the punchers of the plains of the West. So he immediately packed and left on a train for New York City sans a bon jour to his mother.

He was no longer tied to the maternal apron strings; he was free. The next day he was in New York; it was a great treat to him; he even became heliocentric; that is, he kept his sunnyside up. New York, the city where men will stand for anything in a subway but a woman,—is where he received his greatest glimpse of the world. He then journeyed to Niagara Falls, where he nearly made a stupendous purchase when a snappy salesman nearly sold it to him. He became low on funds and had to nourish furnaces and shave lawns before he could go his journey by rail, but then he had to take a lower berth; that is, he rode under the pullman of the train. He then strayed into Cleveland, where he took a job at slinging hash. "A penny saved, etc.," or the words of Ben Franklin, Percy took this advice and saved.

He then journeyed into Kansas, the prohibition stricken state, and when asked what he would have to quench his thirst, he said: "Julep." (Oh! yeah!)

He was not far from the land of his dreams; he was a man now, free, alone, and happy. Then low on funds, he took a heavy virile job at putting the holes in doughnuts, also he hauled away the hot air. That the first thousand is the hardest was found to be authentic by Percy, for he struggled long to save enough to go on to the land of his dreams. This time he became airminded and journeyed on by air, for this would save time. Percy was part Scotch. Having been a Boy Scout, he believed in preparedness first, so he purchased a winged collar and balloon pants.

Upon arriving in San Francisco, he asked: "Where is the Golden Gate?" Percy, while a youth, had been taught to play a piano, and during his wandering here, he landed a job; that is, his dream had come true; he had now become a puncher, that is an ivory puncher in an orchestra. While thus occupied, he became affected by Dan Cupid's amative arrow and became engaged to a pretty little thing.

Just then a gong sounded. Percy awoke. He had fallen asleep while reading H. Greeley's pamphlet in his room at his mansion home in Boston.

Such is life.

SOPHOMORE CLASS POEM

We, the class of '32
Are very proud to say,
"We've won two years thro',"
Although, there was much to pay.

Our motto is, "Work and Win;"
The work is hard 'tis true,
But our reward equals gold, not tin
And our motto will win us thro'.

Our banner of blue and grey,
Which waves for you and me;
Will fly till graduation day
And to it we'll be true.

Yes, and there is our flower
The Lily of the Valley, sweet;
It will make a pretty bower
And no other can compete.

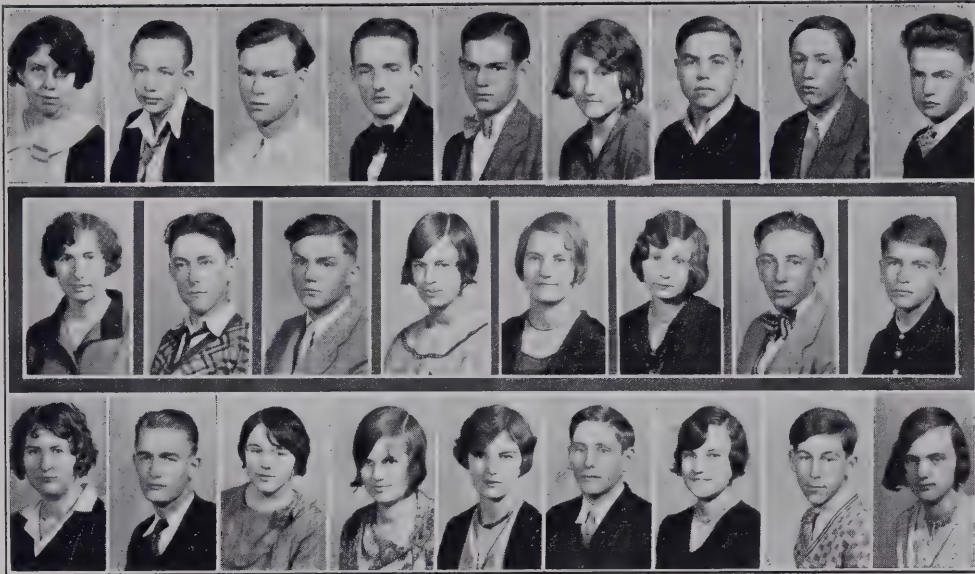

We Sophomores are six and twenty strong
Who hope to come back next year
And make a happy throng
Of Juniors, with good cheer.

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

In September, nineteen hundred twenty-eight, thirty bright Freshmen mounted the ladder to graduation. During the year one member left, but a new one came, so at the end of the year thirty Freshmen were looking forward to their Sophomore year.

When the class returned last autumn, it found there were twenty-six Sophomores to continue their second year. During the year the class has neither lost nor gained members. The class of '32 is hoping to return next year to be "Jolly Juniors."

THE YOUNG MUSICIAN

The sound of music reached the ears of the people on the streets of Chicago. It attracted the attention of one particular man, a band director in the studio of WLS, Chicago. The man went in the direction of an object he thought was sitting on the grass beneath a tree. A boy, ten years of age and rather poorly clad, was sitting there playing a mouth harp.

"Well, well" said the man, "so this is where the music is coming from."

The little boy sat up straight and looked his visitor in the eye. "Yes sir," he said.

"Well, why are you out so late, my little boy" the man asked.

"I—I have no place to go," sobbed the little boy.

"Well, what is your name?" questioned the man.

"T-Tommy Brown," was the reply.

"Where are your parents?" was the question that brought tears to the eyes of the youngster.

"My parents are dead," he sobbed. "They died 'bout two months ago."

"Well, Tommy," said the man, "come to my house tonight, will you?"

The boy looked up with big round eyes filled with tears. He was so tickled that he hardly knew what to do.

The boy ate a good supper, cooked by a stylish young lady, and went to sleep in a nice soft feather bed.

The sun found Tommy still sleeping. A rap on the door awoke him.

"Are you awake?" came the question.

"Yes," was the reply, and Tom jumped out of bed and hurriedly dressed. In a few minutes he washed and was ready for breakfast.

"Tommy, my name is Jack DeFonte, and I am director of an orchestra at the WLS studio," he said as they were eating breakfast. "Would you like to join my orchestra? I see you like music pretty well."

"On," cried the boy, "I would like to but—but——"

"Well, then you will," interrupted the man, "I will buy you a horn or whatever you want, and start you out now. You are oud child."

The boy was so happy that he did not know what to do.

"Tonight we will go to the studio, and you can see my orchestra, but first we will buy you some new clothes," said Jack.

The boy was fitted with the nicest suit of clothes he had ever worn. Evening came and found Jack and Tommy on their way to the studio.

"In a few years you will be ready to enter my orchestra," said Jack.

"Oh, you don't mean it!" said Tommy.

"Sure thing," said Jack, "I am going to buy whatever instrument you want and give you lessons on it myself."

They came to the studio. Up a flight of stairs there was the auditorium, big enough to hold about five hundred, and a little room for the orchestra to play in. Jack picked out a seat for the little boy to sit on and told him to sit there till they were through.

After half an hour the members of the orchestra put up their instruments, and Jack came back to where Tommy was sitting.

"Come up here a minute," he said.

Tommy immediately obeyed him. He followed him up in the little room. There he found the shining gold and silver horns. They all looked very nice to him.

"Now," said Jack, "pick the one you want."

Tommy looked them all over and said he would rather hear each one play first. Each one was sounded, and he thought he liked the trumpet the best.

"All right," said Jack, "you will have your horn by tomorrow night and take your first lesson."

The next night rolled around, and Tommy had his horn and was looking it over. In half an hour Jack had taught him so he could play four or five notes. The next night he taught him the music, and so on for a week.

A year rolled by. He was the best young trumpet player in the city. He could just rattle the pieces off. One night Jack asked him, "Tommy, how do you like the orchestra "

"Just fine," came the answer. "I am going to be the head of one when I get big, too."

It was not many years till he was the best known orchestra leader in Chicago. He also gave lessons to other boys such as he was once himself.

FRESHMAN CLASS POEM

Oh, Freshmen, say, Freshmen
We've held our own this term
Through thick and thin
We've stood like men
Our credits we much earn.

And when these credits worthy
We see in black and white
Our eyes will fill with knowledge
Of scholastic and studious light.

As each year passes onward
Higher honors we must win
Though hard be the way
We must climb till May
Forward will press with vim.

And when the day of reckoning
Comes—with stern set fact of stone
We'll answer true
As we always do
And start our life's work—alone.

—Nancy Drew '33

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY

A class of twenty-five pupils started in the first grade under Miss Hollopeter, in the year nineteen hundred twenty-one. This is considered one of the most important events of the life of the class. Throughout the years many pupils have joined and left the class. However this year more joined than ever before, making the class the largest it has ever been. The Freshmen are all looking forward to being graduated from the W. H. S. in three years and then taking up some other trail of life.

OUR SCHOOL

When the golden sun is sinking
Into the rosy west,
In your mind you'll be thinking
Of the school you loved best.

And in the after years of life
When all is work and petty strife,
Unto your mind there comes a thought
And your memory is often sought.

What is this thought, held so dear
While you're at work, that brings you cheer?
It is very simple; one could guess
'Tis the old school, come back to bless.

It has its faults but its virtues too,
And no other school on earth would do,
It has first place in the hearts of those
Who loved it, and the love still grows.

Then let us be true, while we may
And help our school in every way
Each heart and hand is turned to you,
Do not conceal your pure true blue.

EIGHTH GRADE CLASS POEM

Listen, our friends, and you shall hear
Of the adventurous tale of our last grade year
Waterloo High shall be really alive
When we become "Freshies" the following year.

So next year we must try once more
For we shall make up the Freshie class
We'll always have the best from fate
To pull us through at a high rate.

—Maurice Stroh '34

EIGHTH GRADE CLASS HISTORY

The eighth grade began its school career in September nineteen hundred twenty-two with Miss Erma Hollopeter as teacher. There were twenty-nine members then. During the following years many pupils were added and a few were lost. The class entered the eighth grade with Burt Kepler as teacher. The class has thirty-seven pupils now, and it hopes to continue together until the senior year is completed.

—Charles Corrigan '34

SEVENTH GRADE CLASS POEM

When we entered school last autumn,
As a class of twenty-four,
Many things loomed up before us,
Difficulties, work galore.

But we started in to beat them,
In our bashful sort of way;
We sacrificed much pleasure
And success has been our pay.

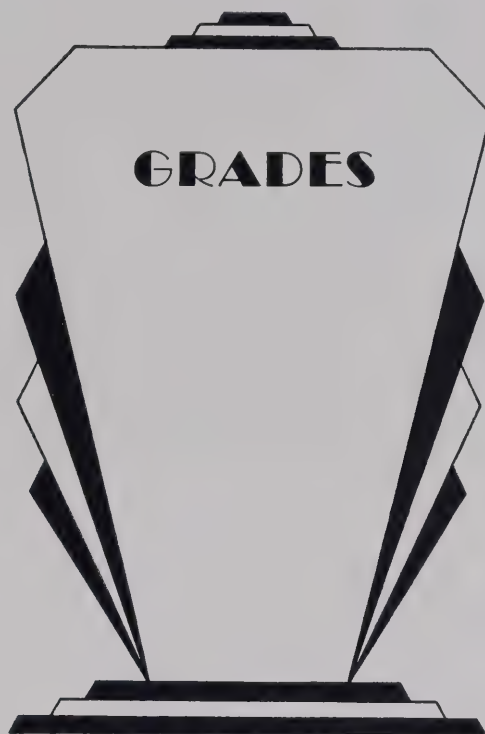

When our grade work is finished,
And we reach the high school round,
We will look back on the pleasures
That we, when graders, found.

—Caryl Walker

SEVENTH GRADE CLASS HISTORY

A class of twenty-three pupils started in the first grade, in the year of nineteen hundred twenty-three. During the six years some of the pupils left, and new ones entered. The class of which the members are very proud now consists of twenty-six pupils. It is hoped that it will retain this number to come back next year as the eighth grade.

ZEDALETHEAN LITERARY SOCIETY

The Zedalethean Literary Society has carried on very successfully the work and maintained the high standards for which it was organized.

The programs were given once a month to help the pupil become familiar with appearing before the public. The society had the hearty co-operation of every member, making the programs a great success.

Mr. Smith was elected our body advisor. His co-operation and helpful suggestions led toward the betterment of the society. For him the society will always have great respect because of his helping to make the society the best it has ever been.

—Daisie Bowman '30

CICERONIAN LITERARY SOCIETY

The members of the Ciceronian Literary Society have maintained the high standard and even raised it to a higher plane than it has been in previous years.

The programs were given on dates decided upon by the faculty. These programs were given with a view of educating and instructing as well as of entertaining.

For each program a different program committee was appointed. This committee consisted of one member from each class and the president and secretary of the society.

The maintenance and raising of the high standard of the society was largely due to the instruction and advice given by Miss Leakey, the society advisor.

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

The Boys' Glee Club continued its organization this year with many new members.

The glee club organized at the beginning of the year and elected the following officers: President, Waldo Crooks, secretary-treasurer, Albert Dunn.

The glee club met every Friday and active interest was shown in the work. Many of the boys took part in the contest for voice and in the operetta, and more interest yet is urged.

The boys' interest has been appreciated by the high school, and it is hoped that the club may be more successful next year.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

This year the music department has been quite successful. The Girls' Glee Club was organized at the beginning of the school year. The officers elected were: President, Daisie Mae Bowman; secretary, Geraldine Rufner; treasurer, Maxine McEntafer.

In March, the DeKalb County Musical and Literary Contest was held in Auburn. Waterloo was represented in the chorus, double quartette, piano and voice events; the chorus won second, piano third, and voice first. The piano solo was presented by Mural Wise, and the vocal solo by Daisie Mae Bowman.

Public appearances were made throughout the year by the glee club.

ORCHESTRA

The orchestra was organized a few weeks after the beginning of the school term last fall with an enrollment of ten members. Regular rehearsals were held once a week and public appearances were made at various times throughout the school year. The enrollment has now increased to twelve members and it should be much larger by next autumn because of the individual lessons that have been given each week during the greater part of this school year.

HI-Y CLUB

The Hi-Y Club, in the initial year of its existence, has been entirely successful. Not only has it repeatedly increased its membership roll but it has been the sponsors of a number of worth while projects for the school and community.

Early in the year the club sponsored a four day Fall Festival which furnished the outstanding educational and entertaining programs of the year.

Another similar success was the presentation of the motion picture, "Simba," under our auspices.

In November, the club staged the First Annual Father-Son Banquet, which was attended by sixty-five and pronounced the outstanding achievement of the school year. An elaborate menu was served and an extraordinarily good program followed.

Later, during the six weeks of the Lenten season preceding Easter, the Hi-Y participated in the State Hi-Y Bible Study Contest. This not only provided the competition that makes a contest worth while, but gave each boy a training and course of instruction along a much needed line that was of immeasurable value to him.

On April 8th, the Waterloo Hi-Y was the host to the Second Annual Older Boys Conference. Those attending were the representatives from schools in DeKalb, Steuben and Noble counties. J. Clyde Forney was the principal speaker and delivered two very fine addresses. Mr. Forney is from South Bend and works with boys in Hi-Y and Y. M. C. A. work. A banquet was served at 6 o'clock and was largely attended.

During the week following Easter the Hi-Y sponsored the presentation of the motion picture, "The Passion Play," which was well received.

Besides these six outstanding accomplishments of the organization, the club has held its regular meetings which were largely discussions of practical topics that concern every young man of today. Also, occasionally a recreational meeting was held. It can thus be seen that the club has actually practiced the four factors stressed in our slogan. The members feel they have succeeded in their club's purpose: To create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character.

—Wilbur Kimmell '30.

GIRL RESERVES

This is the first year for the Girl Reserves organization, which is a branch of the Y. W. C. A. for high school girls, in our school.

The Girl Reserve Club tries to develop the fourfold sides of a girl's life, spiritual, mental, physical and social.

The activities are planned so that every girl has a chance to broaden herself from each side.

In February the local Girl Reserve Club sponsored the First Annual Mother-Daughter Banquet, which was well attended and well received.

THE WISHING WELL

The Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs under the direction of Mrs. Runyon presented the operetta, "The Wishing Well," a musical comedy in three acts. The operetta has a quaint Irish setting and was very pleasingly presented.

"THE WISHING WELL"

A Musical Comedy in 3 Acts

STORY OF THE PLAY

Lady Mary Donnell is the last of an old, but impoverished family. She lives with her niece, Noreen, and four servants at the ancestral home of the Donnells in Ireland. She has placed a mortgage on the place and is having difficulty in meeting her payments.

Squire Baxby, a neighbor to Lady Mary, leads her to believe that he has great wealth and wishes to marry her. Noreen objects very much to Squire Baxby but she makes friends with a gentleman vagabond whom she finds asleep in the garden.

Lady Mary gives lodging to the stranger because of her need for money. While he is living at the Donnells' home, Squire Baxby tries to get Lady Mary to put a second mortgage on the place which will mean money to him. The stranger surmises that some crooked deal is being attempted and sends a messenger to Dublin who saves Lady Mary from a financial loss.

The stranger is finally discovered to be an old friend of Lady Mary and he does all these things because of his love for her. After she discovers the truth concerning Squire Baxby and the stranger, she dismisses the thoughts of the Squire from her mind in favor of the stranger, Terence O'Grady.

AARON BOGGS, FRESHMAN

"Aaron Boggs, Freshman" was presented by the Senior Class of the Waterloo High School at the High School Auditorium, May 22, 1930.

STORY OF THE PLAY

On the opening day of a small co-educational college in the Middle West a congenial group of students are assembled on the historic college fence. Prominent among the number are Beau Carter, one of the "big" men of the college, and Pepper Jarvis, who came to school to learn repose. After some good-natured chaffing Happy Jimmie Jamison, the most popular boy in college, arrives. He announces his intention of becoming a grind and, replying to the persiflage of the crowd, says that he is to be married as soon as he leaves school. Jimmie, however, is noted for his affaires d'amour and soon is busily engaged flirting with a homesick little Freshman from Dayton, O. Miss Cherry Carruthers (the little Freshman) is also engaged to a man back home, but is very glad to receive the attentions from the gallant Jimmie nevertheless. Quite a crowd of students and co-eds are assembled by the fence when Mr. Epenetus P. Boggs arrives bringing his son, Aaron to college. The students have Mr. Boggs make a speech and promise to give Aaron a warm welcome. Mr. Boggs departs for his native village of Splinterville and Aaron is left to the tender mercies of the upper classmen, who immediately proceed to haze the Freshman. The heroine of the play, Miss Elyzabethe Maudelia Feeny, a very lady-like waitress, is also from Splinterville, where she was known as Lizzie Feeny. She encounters Aaron and by a clever subterfuge saves him from a ducking in the lake and causes the hazers to duck one of their own number, whom they mistake in the dark for Aaron.

Act II shows the interior of Mrs. Chubb's select boarding-house for students. Aaron has procured rooms here and is snubbed by the more aristocratic clientele until Beau Carter receives a telegram informing him that Aaron is the grandson of Stephen Boggs, an eccentric multi-millionaire. He immediately becomes the lion of the school and is shown marked favors by Miss Newcomb, the college queen. His old sweetheart, Lizzie Maud, is forgotten in his newly acquired popularity and he is invited to become a candidate for president of the Freshman class.

Act III shows the rapid progress of the love affair between Jimmie and Miss Carruthers and the despair of Lizzie Maud as she realizes that Aaron has entirely moved from her horizon. Aaron is elected president of the Freshman class but the boys discover that the telegram was a hoax and that he is no relation to the multi-millionaire. They immediately give him the cold shoulder and Aaron at last finds his true place in the college world and finds the faithful Lizzie Maud waiting for him.

COME OUT OF THE KITCHEN

The Junior class of the Waterloo High School, presented at the High School Auditorium, December 17, 1929, a comedy in three acts entitled "Come Out of the Kitchen."

SYNOPSIS

The scene took place in an old, aristocratic plantation house in Virginia. The Daingerfield children, left at home by their parents, who are journeying in Europe on account of Mr. Daingerfield's health, have financial trouble. They decide to rent the place to a Northern gentleman. Just when he is about to arrive, they find that the servants whom they had hired have backed out on them. They can not use their own servants, who are negroes, because the Northerner wanted white ones. The result is a beautiful romance, which ends when the Northerner proposes to the Daingerfield's oldest daughter, Olivia.

DREAM BOAT

"Dream Boat" was an operetta given by the first six grades of the Waterloo School under the direction of Mrs. Runyon.

STORY

The children almost tired out from play in the meadow hear the Dream Man's call. Drowsiness overtakes them and the Dream Boat itself appears and carries them off to Dream Land where they meet all the romantic and beautiful characters about whom they have dreamed. They are shown a great picture book which contains pictures of wonderful people they have read of and seen in their dreams. All these people come to life and the children find great joy in meeting them personally. In this land the Pirate Captain and Indian Chief have never met but due to the influence of the visitors a disturbance between them was avoided and the Pirate and Chief become friends. At last the Dream Man's call is heard again and the little voyagers are brought back to earth to dream again.

MISS MOLLY'S GIRL

The Seventh and Eighth grades presented a three act play, "Miss Molly's Girl," in the High School Auditorium on April 25. It was an attractive short three act play, especially adapted for young folks. The principal characters were Miss Rachel, who didn't like children, Miss Molly, who did, and Narciss, one of the "fresh air" children, who was willing to masquerade as a girl that he might stay with Miss Molly, and at last found favor with Miss Rachel when he foiled the plans of a burglar.

SATISFIED

The office of Mr. Hall was a pleasant place, and especially so for Dixie Lee, a pretty young girl of twenty. A stranger entering the office would have pronounced it a place of satisfaction, but he would have been far from right.

Dixie Lee was nicely dressed and carefully groomed, but it meant skimping and being very careful of that twenty dollars salary. She often thought, as she noticed girls dressed in beautiful clothes and with plenty of money, that she would never be satisfied until she had similar advantages. Dixie's home life was not a pleasant one; maybe that is one reason that she never thought of having a home of her own. Dixie's friends were not many, but those she had were very dear. There were Mary and Ruth, who had a wonderful mother; Dixie spent many happy Sundays with them. Then there was David, the boy who lived in the same boarding house and was what Dixie called a "good spirit." Her only dislike of him was his dislike of rich people and their money. Dixie often told David how she would like to have many pretty things and lots of money and to go to the big parties and teas, but David scorned the idea and prophesied that Dixie would never be satisfied with that kind of life.

Monday morning as Dixie neared the office, she sighed deeply as she looked at the beautiful car in front of the office building. When she entered Mr. Hall's office, she was still wondering about the car. To her surprise she saw a very dignified looking gentleman, whom Mr. Hall introduced as Mr. Kenworth. Of course she quickly guessed that the car belonged to him and therefore imagined her romantic wish spoiled. In that respect Dixie was wrong. About ten minutes later a handsome young man came into the office to inquire if Mr. Kenworth was ready to go. As he entered, he quickly noticed Dixie, and being used to having everything he wished, he punched his father until he was given an introduction to Dixie; then they departed. Dixie had fallen in love with him and immediately began building air castles.

A week passed, and Dixie saw nothing of Alfred Kenworth, Jr. She supposed it had been only a dream, but she did not give up. That evening as she left the building, she noticed the beautiful car, and as she turned down the street, she saw someone get out and start after her. It was Alfred, and he wanted to take her for a drive. Of course Dixie accepted the invitation, and Alfred showed her such a lovely time that she readily agreed to meet him Saturday noon and have lunch with him and then go for a drive.

The two young people got along splendidly, and that evening Alfred took Dixie home for dinner. Dixie struck up a great friendship with Alfred's mother and father, and they seemed to like Dixie exceedingly well. Alfred's mother was an invalid and could not partake in all of the entertainment, so Dixie tried to entertain her in some pleasant manner. Finding her willing to listen to a story, Dixie picked up a magazine and started reading. Mrs. Kenworth was greatly pleased with Dixie's soft voice and the way she read. That evening as Dixie left, Mrs. Kenworth asked her to come back soon and entertain her. Of course Dixie said she would be glad to, and Alfred assured his mother that she would.

Alfred called nearly every Saturday for Dixie, and they would take a ride and then go home for dinner. Mrs. Kenworth enjoyed Dixie immensely, and she always looked forward to Saturday evening. One day Mrs. Kenworth took ill. The first person she thought of was Dixie. Dixie was not a nurse, but she was a great comfort. Mrs. Kenworth called Mr. Kenworth and asked him about having Dixie come and stay with her for a while. Of course Mr. Kenworth agreed to anything to make things pleasant for his invalid wife. He called in person for Dixie that evening after work and took her home. When they were all gathered in Mrs. Kenworth's room, Alfred broke forth the news. Here was Dixie's chance. She finished the week at Mr. Hall's office and started the next week with Mrs. Alfred Kenworth, Sr. as her social secretary and entertainer. She entered a new life.

How different things were now! Dixie had been with the Kenworths for two months. She had breakfast in bed; she received invitations to teas and parties; she played bridge and tennis. She also took Mrs. Kenworth driving. Was she satisfied? We shall see.

With Alfred living in the same house with Dixie, she saw much more of him and at first could see no one but him. He sent her flowers, candy, and everything that a girl could want; but one evening Alfred's friends were having a party. Dixie disliked this particular gang and therefore refused to go with Alfred. He became angry and went alone. She was sorry afterwards that she had refused him, for she almost knew what would happen. Alfred did not come home until four the next morning; then he was dead drunk. Dixie would have nothing to do with him and as time went on he became worse. He was drunk night after night. Finally one evening he was ashamed and apologized. He even asked her to go for a drive. Dixie was overjoyed and accepted the invitation. They started toward the beach, but they ended up at a night club. Dixie could not imagine what Alfred meant, but she followed him in anyway. On the inside she found Alfred's unbearable friends making "whoopie." Alfred was alright for a while, but finally he joined their merry making. Dixie could stand no more. She excused herself and rushed out, jumped in the car, and drove home.

That night before Dixie went to bed she packed her clothes, and the next morning she slipped out very softly, leaving a letter of explanation for Mrs. Kenworth.

Dixie had telephoned to David, and he met her at the car. She was very nervous and excited when she saw David. Why? David seemed pleased to see her too. He greeted her with a broad smile and his hand grasped hers tightly. All day Dixie was busy settling in her old life; that night she and David went to the little show on the corner, the one they had gone to so long ago when Dixie had wished they could go to the big theater. Now she was glad to get back. That evening after the show they didn't go directly home, but they drove down around the beach. As Dixie got into the car, she relaxed. Why was it she felt so happy? Ah—it was David telling her how much he had missed her and that he couldn't get along without her any longer. Dixie realized at last what she wanted. It was David.

That winter they worked and planned together, for next spring there was to be a wedding and already they were fixing the little house out on Cherry Drive. Time seemed to fly.

It was four months later and a beautiful day in May. The wedding was over and the rice had been thrown and they were alone in the little house. What was the feeling Dixie had? Maybe a feeling of satisfaction. Just then David came up beside her.

"Dixie, are you satisfied?" he asked.

"Yes, perfectly, and I've never been before," was her answer.

"But, Dixie, we aren't rich," replied David.

"I found out that it isn't money that I want, but love," was Dixie's answer to this.

"Well," said David, "since you are really satisfied, I'll tell you a little secret. I have invented an appliance for radios which I have patented and sold for fifty thousand dollars and with a royalty of five cents."

VOCATIONAL

In the boys' vocational department this year biology, farm shop, physics, and animal husbandry were taught. The biology class made several trips to the fields and woods while studying insects, trees, wild flowers, and birds.

The farm shop class constructed a set of swings on the playground and made farm gates, barn doors, book racks, hall trees, jumping standards, and many other articles of furniture and wood appliances to be used in the home and on the farm. Some work was also given in rope splicing, concrete work, and gasoline engines. About 2,000 ears of seed corn were tested. Each boy has a home project, which includes equipping a shop at home, potatoes, corn growing, hog raising, onion growing, etc.

The physics class, among other things, charged storage batteries, connected electric lights, and operated a water meter.

The animal husbandry class tested milk from cows at home once each month, kept milk records, hog records, and it did some judging of hogs, sheep, horses, and cattle.

In the girls' vocational department this year the Home Economics Department shoe for a project the purchase and training in the use of an electric stove. The girls sold candy, served special school lunches, served the Lions Club twice, served a Father-Son banquet, a Mother-Daughter banquet, and an Older Boys' Hi-Y Conference banquet. By these means the department paid for the stove and other laboratory equipment.

The State Course of Study caused a change in the courses offered in home economics. The freshman studied clothing, social usage, home relations, foods, the house, and child development. The sophomores studied related art, foods, home management, home nursing, and child development.

MISS LEAKEY

To Miss Leakey we owe many of our victories. She was there to urge the team to keep up the fight when things looked bad for us. When we were injured she was the first one to our aid to see that we had the best of care. She has surely been a friend to the team this year and we sincerely wish for her return next year.

MR. HART

Mr. Hart has been a big star among the little stars of the Waterloo High School. He was a great help in redeeming the team from last year's record. Mr. Hart was of great help this year in athletics and will be of greater help next year. The Senior boys wish to thank Mr. Hart for his kindness in athletics this year and wish him all possible success next year.

HELEN MOYER

WALDO CROOKS

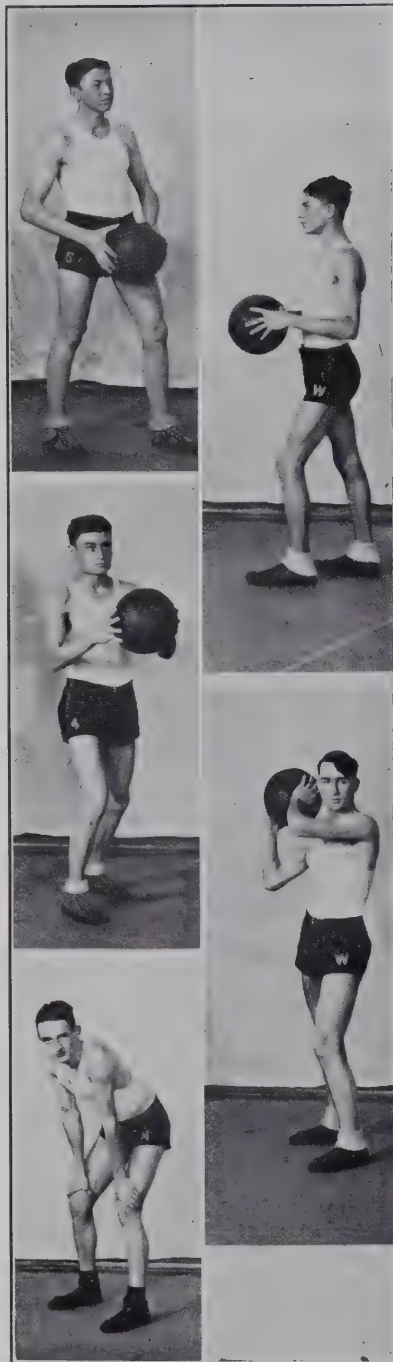

A team may fight hard, but it can put up a better game if it has the support of spectators. The enthusiasm manifested by persons at a basketball game is dependent largely upon the yell leaders. Helen Moyer and Waldo Crooks have served Waterloo High School well in this capacity this year. They have always been on hand to give their own support, to instill pep and enthusiasm into the spectators, and thus to lend encouragement to the members of the team.

ALBERT DUNN (Sliver)
(Captain)
Forward

Sliver played a fast game at forward this year with careful coaching. He piled up the score against the opposing team. He was high-point man. The loss of Sliver through graduation will be greatly felt. He is a two-letter man.

CARL GEETING (Gete)
Forward

Carl played a fast, accurately shooting game this year as forward. He piled up the score, saving the old W. H. S. from defeat on several occasions. Carl is only a Sophomore and is a one-letter man.

DELOS KOHL (Simon)
Center

Delos jumped center for W. H. S. this year. Simon played a hard, steady game with accurate long-field shots. He will be a great help to the team next year, as he is a Junior. Simon is a two-letter man.

LOWELL STRITE (Son)
Guard

Lowell played a hard-fought game this year. In his position of running guard, Lowell stopped the opposing team from scoring many times. He will be a great help to the team next year, as he is only a Junior. He is a one-letter man.

RALPH IMES (Lon)
Guard

Ralph was a hard-fighting player. He played the position of back guard, and he was always stopping the opposing team from scoring. He will be a great help next year, as he is only a Sophomore. He is a one-letter man.

HENRY WING (Hank) Forward

Henry substituted for forward. He played a hard-fought game with plenty of pep. Hank saved old W. H. S. from several defeats. He will be missed next year, as he is a member of this year's graduating class. Hank is a two-letter man.

WILMER McINTOSH (Mac) Forward

Wilmer substituted as forward. He is a fast, hard fighter with an eye for accurate basket shooting. Wilmer will be a help in building next year's team. Mac is only a Sophomore. He is a one-letter man.

GERALD GRIFFIN (Coot) Center

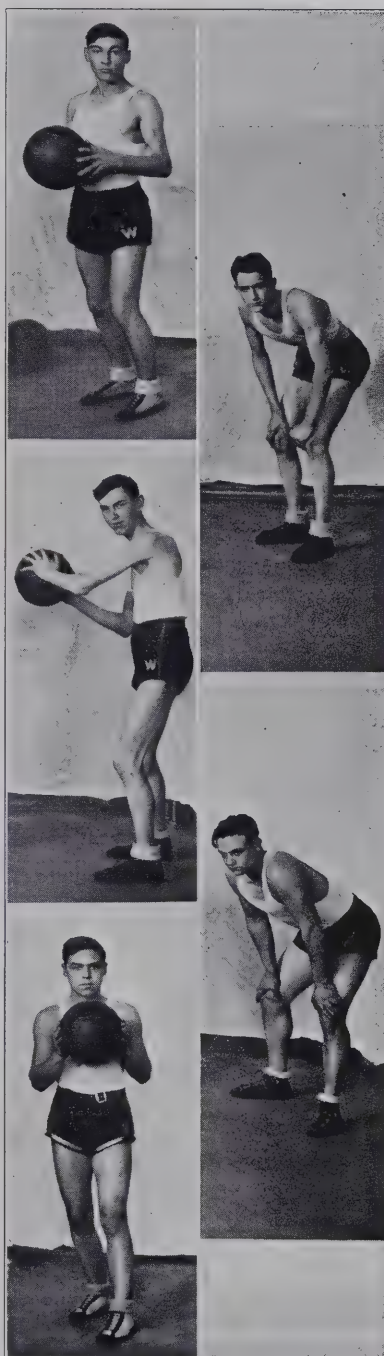

Gerald substituted for center. He played hard, always with the thought of winning, never of losing. Coot is a Junior, so he will see service next year. He is a one-letter man.

RALPH CHILDS (Wid) Guard

Ralph substituted for guard this year. He played hard throughout the season. Wid helped to stop the opponents' scoring. He is also a Senior and a three-letter man.

HOWARD QUAINANCE (Quaker) Guard

Howard substituted for guard. He played hard. Quaker always had plenty of pep and vim. He will be a great help to the team next year, as he is only a Sophomore. Howard is a one-letter man.

MARY DUNCAN (Dunc)
(Captain)
Guard

Mary is always in the game to fight hard, give encouragement, and play a clean game. She is a steady, dependable, consistent guard. The vacancy that Mary's graduation will make in the line-up will be a hard one to fill.

MURIEL BEARD (Beard)
Forward

This is Muriel's last year. The team will feel the loss of her sure playing as forward. Muriel is always full of pep, enthusiastic, and ready to give her best for W. H. S. She certainly kept her guards busy.

HELEN SMALLEY (Smalley)
Forward

One of the snappiest members of this year's team is Helen, the high-point forward. Helen never gives up, always fights to the end, regardless of how the score stands. This is Helen's junior year and her second of service.

GENEVA McBRIDE (G. A.)
Center

G. A. plays jump center and how she can jump! The team work of the McBride sisters is praiseworthy. Geneva has another year on the team and great things are expected from her.

VIVIAN McBRIDE (Vi)
Center

With this year's class the team will lose a very fast side center. Vivian is always there for the tip-off and plays a fighting game. She is little, fast, and hard to guard.

VIVIAN WING (Vi) Guard

Whenever there is fighting to do, Vivian is ready and willing to do her best. She has been on the team two years and has another in which to fight for W. H. S.

DOROTHY CROOKS (Dot) Center

Whenever there is a substitution to be made in any position, Dorothy is capable of handling it well. She has two more years in Waterloo High School.

DOROTHY GOODWIN (Dode) Guard

Dorothy is a very valuable and reliable substitute guard. Her guarding is close and gets results. This is her sophomore year.

MILDRED STEVENSON (Peg) Guard

Peg shows a willingness to fight and always displays good sportmanship. Mildred is a junior and will be expected to be out for basketball next year.

MILDRED WING (Mid) Forward

Mildred is the only freshman on the squad, and she shows promise of being a valuable player. Her work is fast and close.

The ROSEBUD

SEPTEMBER

9—School commenced today in earnest. Freshmen were conducted to their class rooms by the teachers so they would not be running loose in the halls.

10—Tiny Gene entertained us very well. He is a well known radio artist and the name fitted him perfectly.

19—"Hooray for our side." The teachers show what warm hearts they have by letting school out for the Kendallville Fair which we all enjoyed.

20—We are honored with a speech from A. L. Moudy, a former school superintendent, who has travelled in many states of the union. The talk, which was on the Constitution, was brief but very interesting.

25—Another speech today by a Rev. Parks from Corunna which was also very interesting. His talk was on curios from India which he illustrated by an exhibition. He described the ways of living in India.

30—Well, one month of school has passed into history and we hope that the rest of the months go by as quickly as this one did.

OCTOBER

4—the Zedaletheans are honored by giving the first society program of the year. The program was the best given so far this year.

7-8-9—Medical and dental clinic. All the little children from the other building were inspected while the Health Education class looked innocently on.

15—We had a very interesting and instructive talk and slides on Alaska which were given by Mrs. Adams. Several girls decided to go to Alaska and raise pansies. Don't think they will.

NOVEMBER

8—Today Indiana's Poet-Laureate honored us with some of his best poems which he read to us in the auditorium. He must have stubbed his toe on his way out over one of our teachers because when he left he had written a sweet little poem about her.

11—Armistice Day! The day when the great war ended! We all marched out and at eleven o'clock, when all the business stopped to celebrate, we salute the flag while the whistles blow and bells ring. We then came back to the auditorium and was honored by a talk by Rev. Lewellen.

26—Rev. Lewellen again pays us a visit. He is the new pastor at the United Brethren Church and is very welcome. He gave us a very interesting talk which we all enjoyed.

27—Zedas gave a nice program today which the Ciceronians will try to better if they can.

27-29—Hooray! Another vacation and this time a good one. It is Thanksgiving when we have a lot to eat and if we get sick we have a time to get well again.

The ROSEBUD

DECEMBER

6—"Oh, a cartoonist!" Well, well, Mr. Bowers, a man of laughs, sure can draw pictures up side down and any other way. We all felt better when we returned to the assembly after all of forty-five minutes of laughing.

17—"Oh, dear." At last that Junior Class play is over which is almost wrecking all of our nerves from the practicing.

19-20—Oh, it is slippery outside. You have to watch your step or you'll fall down. A number of country children are unable to attend school. They are greatly disappointed but only for two days as the busses then carry them back to their beloved studies.

21-31—Now, the biggest event of the year, our Christmas vacation and Santa Claus, have arrived and we get a whole week of vacation.

JANUARY

1—It sure seems good to get back to school again and in a new year too. Just think of that. This afternoon comes that Ciceronian program which is going to be just a little bit better than the Zedalethean program but naturally can't see much improvement.

14—Oh, a spooky and creepy show of the wilds of Africa which was very good. This was sponsored by the Hi-Y boys and they deserve much credit for securing this remarkable picture, "Simba."

15-16-17—We all have a dreadful headache from having our heads full of important things for first semester examinations and we sure are relieved when the last one is over.

18—Something very important is happening today. The first basketball tourney ever held in Waterloo is today. Just think of all the other large cities in DeKalb County who get disappointed by not getting the tourney.

20—It sure is fun to watch the pupils who flunked in one or more of their first semester exams running around looking for a new subject to take the second semester.

22—What has happened? The assembly divides and goes in separate rooms. The societies elect officers for the second semester and everyone seems satisfied with the results.

FEBRUARY

5—Biggest party of the season. Waterloo Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs meet at the home of Miss Dorothy Goodwin to have a big party. A junior lad plays Romeo by escorting a sophomore and two freshmen girls home that night. Selfish boy. He should have divided up.

10—We all have spring fever and everyone goes to sleep in their classes. The teachers scold us but to no avail as the weather is so nice out. We would like to play hooky but decided not to because it always causes hard feelings. But finally we are dismissed to enjoy it all.

14—Zedas! Rah! Rah! Rah! They have given the best program of the season. Now just let the Ciceronians try to better it!

17—Grand debate tonight at P. T. A. meeting which was really better than P. Henry.

The ROSEBUD

MARCH

14—Ciceronian program today, everybody is invited to come and see the Zedaetheans' opponents put on a program which is fairly good.

17—Tonight, we the contestants, are to be judged. The glee club and double quartette received first place because there was no one to oppose them. In the reading event a Senior girl received first place and also in the vocal solo. We were all satisfied with the returns of the contest.

21—First county contest tonight. Daisie Bowman gets first place in the vocal solo. The chorus gets second.

25—"Adventures in the Far North," is a movie presented under the auspices of the Hi-Y. It is an educational picture very worth while.

28—Second county contest. We get third in the piano solo and in the reading. The quartette did very well even if they didn't take any prizes.

APRIL

8—Older Boys' Conference is held here today with our Hi-Y Club acting as hosts. We have a fine time and hear some very good addresses.

12—Commercial Contest at Kendallville. Our typing class gets second place and bookkeeping takes fifth.

16—Grade cards come out the last time for the Seniors. Some are satisfied with their grades while others are not. Wonder why?

18—Can they sing? And how! We are entertained today by the Indiana Central College Quartette. They sure can put on a real program.

22—"The Passion Play" is presented under the auspices of the Hi-Y. A fine picture and was well received. The Hi-Y sure has put it over on the Girl Reserves when it comes to really doing something for the school and community.

25—Another program! This time it is a good one. It is a Zeda program. They sure do put on real programs.

25—Now, this is going to be good. The Senior English class stages a drama. Several actors are "found." The actors are complimented on their performances.

Also the seventh and eighth grades stage a play all of their own. They do very well.

MAY

5—At last the big night arrives. It is annual Junior-Senior Reception. We get a very nice one this year. Thanks, Juniors.

22—Another big night arrived. The Senior class play. A swell play that is well received. The Seniors are all satisfied with the outcome.

23—Oh, my! The saddest day of the year has arrived today for the Seniors. The last day of school! Underclassmen are happy but the poor Seniors go about downcast. Their last day of high school.

25—Baccalaureate tonight. We have it at the United Brethren Church and Rev. Lewellen delivers the sermon which was a masterpiece.

27—Commencement exercises. J. Raymond Schutz of Manchester College delivers our Commencement address which was truly great. We have reached the end. There is no more of high school for us. With heavy hearts we pass through the doors of the W. H. S. for the last time as students. Farewell!

NOTICE TO JUNIOR CLASS:

The freshman class will hold the junior class responsible for all the broken hearts caused the freshman girls by a junior boy. (Lowell Strite) Juniors, watch that shiek.

* * *

First Senior: "Well, I answered a question in class today."

Second Senior: "Fine. What answer did you give?"

First Senior: "Present."

* * *

One: "The doctor told me to quit smoking or it would affect my brain."

Two: "Well, why don't you?"

Lowell Strite: "I took a new girl home last night."

Ralph Boyer: "That's all right, but it doesn't explain what you did with the other two you had with you."

* * *

"Boss, there is a Scotchman in the store who wants to buy ten cents worth of poison to commit suicide. How can I save him?"

"Tell him it will cost twenty cents."

* * *

He: "I love you, darling."

She: "You thrill me when you say that, dear."

He: "Now give me one more kiss before I go, sweetheart."

She: "Must you go?"

He: "I'm afraid I must."

She: "But, dear, you forgot."

He: "What's that, darling lover?"

She: "You didn't leave me any ice."

* * *

Miss Leakey: (In English 10) "Give the principal parts of sew."

Wayne Bowman: "Sew, sue, sown."

* * *

Mr. Munn: "Where did the convention meet, Helen?"

Helen Smalley: "Huh?"

Mr. Munn: "I didn't know there was a place by that name."

* * *

Edw. McEntafer: "Young man, I'll teach you to kiss my daughter!"

Ralph Imes: "Too late, old man, she has taught me already."

* * *

Hazel Childs to Adell Munn (in bookkeeping): "Where did you put your sense? (cents)"

* * *

Wayne Voss: "Do you want a haircut?"

Grider P.: "Naw! Cut them all while you are about it."

JESS RODEBAUGH, Prop.

HULL POULTRY CO.

Waterloo, Ind.

Did you ever hear about the surgeon who quit his work because he said he had too much inside work?

* * *

Miss Leakey: "I would rather be killed by a guillotine than by a firing squad."

Waldo C.: "I wouldn't because they might get nervous and miss me."

* * *

Husband: "What kind of a run-about have you?"

Second Husband: "Why, er, er, mine has two feet and has lately taken to wearing long dresses again."

* * *

Miss Jamison: "Now, in getting a meal what is the first and most important thing?"

Virginia D.: "Find the can opener!"

* * *

Mr. Munn: (U. S. History) "Lowell, what right was given the negro in the 14th amendment after being made free in the 13th amendment?"

Lowell: (half-asleep) "Woman suffrage."

* * *

Mr. Munn: "What makes you so small, my man?"

Carlton Arnold: "Aw, my old man was a Scotchman."

* * *

Mr. Hart: "Have you taken a shower?"

Ralph Childs: "No, is there one missing?"

* * *

"It's the little things in life that tell," said the flapper as she yanked her kid brother from under the sofa.

* * *

Mr. Munn: "Some genius in Vermont has invented a buttonless shirt."

Mr. Smith: "Why, that's nothing now. I've been wearing them ever since my wife learned to play bridge."

* * *

"Nurse," said an amorous patient, "I'm in love with you. I don't want to get well."

"Don't worry, you won't," she assured him. "The doctor is in love with me too and he saw you kiss me this morning."

* * *

Grider: "Why are you so sad?"

Albert Dunn: "I bought one of those books called 'How to Make Love' and now I don't know what to do. It says take the lady's hand, look into her eyes and say, 'I love you, Beatrice.'"

Grider: "Well?"

Albert: "My girl's name is Muriel."

* * *

Dale Moyer: "I don't see why my dad says that ma is always changing her mind."

Byron Fretz: "Why not?"

Dale: "Well, I asked her for a dime three times today and she said 'No' every time."

Mural: "What is your sister doing now?"

Daisie: "She makes up jokes?"

Mural: "So she is working in a newspaper office?"

Daisie: "No—beauty parlor."

* * *

1st Monkey: (at zoo) "There's another one of those blamed Scotchmen."

2nd Monkey: "How can you tell?"

1st Monkey: "He just threw in an empty peanut shell."

* * *

Muriel: "Carlton is an awful pest. He never seems to know when to stop."

Mural: "That's strange. I was out riding with him only last night and he found a dandy place."

* * *

Albert: "Do you believe that maladies can be transmitted by kissing?"

Waldo: "Well, I kissed my girl for the first time last night and I've had palpitation of the heart ever since."

* * *

Dentist: "Ah, I see a very large cavity."

Patient: "That reminds me — I haven't had lunch yet."

* * *

Burt Kepler: "See that woman over there? She's a payroll bandit."

Glen Hart: "How do you know?"

Burt K.: "I married her."

* * *

Robert Boyer: "How long can I live without brains?"

Ralph Childs: "That remains to be seen."

Edward Schlosser: "Have you ever been in a railway accident?"

Waldo Crooks: "Yes, once when I was in a train and we were through a tunnel I kissed the father instead of the daughter."

* * *

Penitent: "I have stolen a fat goose from a poultry yard!"

Priest: "That is very wrong."

Penitent: "Would you like to accept it, father?"

Priest: "Certainly I will not receive stolen goods—return it to the man from whom you stole it."

Penitent: "But I have offered it to him and he won't have it."

Priest: "In that case you may keep it yourself."

Penitent: "Thank you, father."

The priest arrived home to find one of his own geese stolen.

* * *

Mrs. Munn: "I'm going to give you a piece of my mind."

Mr. Munn: "Just a small helping, please."

* * *

Husband: (feeling a twinge in the back while he is tuning in the wireless receiver) "I believe I'm getting lumbago?"

Wife: "What's the use, dear? You won't be able to understand a word they say."

* * *

Waldo: "What do you do when in doubt about kissing a girl?"

Albert: "Give her the benefit of the doubt."
